AN UNSUCCESSFUL EXPEDITION.

ATTEMPTS TO FIND THE SUNKEN TUG NICOL. THWARTED BY STRONG WINDS AND

A HEAVY SEA. The expedition of the Reeve Harbor and Tow ing Company in search of the wreck of the ill-fated drowned passengers, yesterday proved to be a fruitless errand. The wind was unpropittous and ; the sea too rough for active operations, and Captain Thomas, who was in charge of the expellition, decided, after consultation, to postpone further operations till this morning, when two wreckingturs with divers and all necessary paraphernalla from the Chapman Wrecking Company will start C at 6 o'clock for the scene of the disaster. The fo yesterday, is supposed to have passed directly over the sunken tug, but the sea was too rough to | Dom permit divers to examine the wreek, which it was decided lies in about eight fatnoms of water. Several landings were made yesterday, and the beaches were thoroughly patrolled by the officers and crew of the Garrison, but searching inquiry made at life-saving stations failed to reveal any tidings of other bodies having been washed ashore than have already been reported.

Both Captain Thomas and Captain Suly believe that while no more bodies may be washed ashore in the next few days, there may be several at the expiration of nine days from the date of the disaster, if wind and tide favor, the familiar theory being that at the end of that time the bodies rise. Opposed to this theory, however, is the fact that while drowned bodies that he at the leatiom of the sea do not rise to the surface within the commonly accepted time limit, those which may have been drawn in the vortex of the sinking Nicol may have been far removed by the strong undertow which exists off the New-Jersey and Long Island coasts. Both captains, who are veterans in the Sandy Hook, or "outside" tugboat service, are of the opinion that some bodies may be found imprisoned in the hall of the tug or entangled in her tow lines or flag hallards. Much small wreekage was seen adrift near the place of the stricing yesterday, and Captain Thomas thinks that had wind and wave favored yesterday as he expects them to to-day, the wreck would have been buoyed, some bodies and property recovered and the question as to the feasibility of raising the tog definitely determined.

announcement printed exclusively in The Tribune yesterday of the decision of the court-martial which tried Colonel William Seward, of the 5th Regiment, on a charge of disobedience of orders, preferred by Brigadier-General Louis Fitzgerald, was a great surprise to National Guardsmen in this city. Few seemed to expect that the verdict of the court would be any more severe than that 'olonel Seward was guilty of an error of judgment, The news was confirmed yesterday, and it was learned also that the sentence was only a repri-mand. Two of the members of the court voted against even this sentence, so the decision is con-sidered by Colonel Seward's friends as next to a

All the records of the case have been sent to the Governor. He has the power to approve or disapove the verdict, and his decision is final.

The sentence might have been dismissal from the National Guard as well as a fine. The court obviously did not regard Colonel Seward's offence an extremely heinous one, as the penalty imposed is only a reprimand. Colonels David E. Austen and Alexis C. Smith opposed any penalty whatever, National Guard officers who were told of this National Guard officers who were told of this result yesterday, as a rule, said they were surprised that Colonel Seward had been found guilty at all. They wondered, they said, what the world discretion means when it is in a military order. In this case, they say, it seems to have had no meaning whatever, if the decision of the court is approved by the Governor. Colonel Seward could not have been found guilty of any greater offence if the order had been plain and mandatory with no qualification whatever. As the sentence showed a technical disobedience, however, they were not inclined to criticise the court. It is believed that an official announcement will be made from Albany of the decision of the court and of the Governor within a day or two.
